Mary Smith Launches Campaign for Williamson County Mayor with Energizing Kickoff at Homestead Manor

THOMPSON'S STATION, TN — With a message of hope, heritage, and a bold vision for the future, Republican Mary Smith officially launched her campaign for Williamson County Mayor on Saturday, November 1st, drawing a standing room crowd of over 300 enthusiastic supporters to Homestead Manor in Thompson's Station.

The evening began on a high note with live entertainment by Steve Oliver and Nikki Nelson of the legendary country group Highway 101, setting the tone for a celebration rooted in community, values, and energy for the road ahead.

The event brought together community leaders, residents, and volunteers, all united around Smith's platform of faith, family, and forward-thinking leadership. It also marked the official beginning of her bid to bring principled, people-first leadership to one of the fastest-growing counties in Tennessee. Several elected officials throughout the county were on hand, reflecting broad community engagement in the campaign.

Campaign Manager Ricky Headley opened the evening with remarks emphasizing Smith's integrity, experience, and track record of results. He was followed by Smith's pastor, her daughter, and her son—currently in his second year at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy—who each offered heartfelt reflections on Mary's unwavering commitment to service, leadership, and love for the community. Their words underscored the campaign's deep roots in faith, family, and public service.

"This campaign is about serving our community with integrity, protecting what makes Williamson County special, and preparing wisely for the future," Smith told the energized crowd. "I'm honored to stand with so many of you tonight as we begin this journey together."

Throughout her address, Smith outlined her campaign's top priorities:

- Responsible growth that strengthens infrastructure while preserving the county's rural character
- Fiscal stewardship focused on reducing debt and keeping taxes low

- Transparent, people-first governance rooted in conservative values and public accountability

“This isn’t just about politics, it’s about people and principles,” said Campaign Manager Ricky Headley. “At a critical time for Williamson County, we need strong leadership grounded in faith and values. Mary has always put community first, and this campaign reflects that same heart and mission.”

As the event concluded, supporters were invited to sign up to volunteer, donate, and join the growing movement to ensure a strong, united future for Williamson County. The energy was electric, and many attendees left inspired to take action in the weeks ahead.

*“I’m not running for office, I’m running for our future,” Smith said.
“Williamson County deserves leadership that listens, plans wisely, and puts people before politics.”*
